COMMENTS FROM THE TOWN MANAGER'S OFFICE

The highway crew has been working on a variety of jobs this week. The bushes on the roadsides are being sprayed as has been done in past years. Where the bushes are back a ways from the road the edges are being mowed. This was done last year and worked out very well. It keeps the bushes back and looks much better than the dead leaves and bushes that remain after spraying.

The grader is back from the work at Andover and one road has been scraped. Grading doesn't do very much good on most of the roads now because they are too dry.

The last of the samplings for Dutch Elm is being done and the samples will be sent in the last of the week. The results of the test will be sent to the town and to the landowner. These results should be back in about a month and the landowner will know as soon as I will.

The owners of tractors and off-the-highway vehicles can exercise them or a personal property tax paid on them. The deadline for exercising these vehicles will be August 7 and any that are not exercised by that time will be charged a personal property tax.

The dog list is being made up to turn over to the town clerk. Anyone who has a dog that is not licensed should do it this week.

STATE CHAMBER PROMOTES ME. PRODUCTS WEEK, AUG. 12 - 17

The annual chamber of commerce Maine Products Week promotion will be August 12 through the 17th this year. Paul C. Emerson, Executive Manager of the Maine State Chamber of Commerce said that the dates selected for the Week insure that the state-wide promotion will coincide with the Maine Products Show in Lewiston on August 15-16-17.

The Maine Products Week promotion is presented annually by the State Chamber and cooperating local chambers of commerce when the number of out-of-state visitors is at a peak. Chambers of commerce all over the state sponsor the promotion by arranging displays of Maine products in store windows and by calling attention to the products available from Maine communities. Manufacturers are urged to hold open house for visitors during the period and colorful posters are distributed throughout the state urging people to "Buy Maine."

Emerson called on all Maine citizens to express their pride in the more than a billion and a half dollars worth of goods produced each year by the Pine Tree State. "We're known for our vacation advantages,"

Bethel is having its fourth annual art show by local painters from noon to 5 p. m. Mollyockett Day, August 3, in the Chapman barn at the head of Main Street. Admission is free but any contribution will be welcome for the benefit of the Health Council. Very few towns have as many year-round residents as Bethel.

he said, "we should be just as well known for the high quality products we turn out, ranging from toothpicks to destroyers."

The State Chamber estimates that nearly two million people can learn more about the quality and quantity of Maine-made products during this promotion.

Mollyockett IGA Super Market Day Saturday To Be Built

Mollyockett Day plans are completed and the long awaited bazaar will take place this Saturday, August 3, on the Bethel Common, as announced by the chairman, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Stevens.

A new Miss Mollyockett has already been chosen by a committee consisting of Amy Davis, Mary Angevine and Louise Lincoln. Her identity will not be known until spectators see her dressed in full Indian regalia as she leads the Mollyockett Day parade in a horse drawn surrey. Miss Oxford County, the lovely Miss Sharon Goodwin, of West Paris, will also participate as a special guest. Starting at the railroad station, the paraders will march up Main Street, around the Common, and disband on Broad Street.

All children parade participants (bicycles, doll carriages, carts, costumed walkers etc.) are requested to meet at Martha's Grill parking lot at 10:30 a. m. Dana Douglass will be in charge of this group. All children participating will be given prizes, but two special awards will be made to the walkers with decorated doll carriages, bicycles or carts. Three trophy awards will be made to the prize floats. Parents are again reminded that their assistance will be needed; and volunteers are asked to contact Charles Farrar.

Ronald Kendall, booth construction chairman, has announced that organizations desiring a booth top should notify him before 6:30 p. m. Friday. Otherwise, booths will be set up without roof stakes. All men, young and old, are invited to report to the Bethel Common at 6:00 p. m. Friday to lend a helping hand; and also on Sunday morning at 9:00 a. m. for clean-up. Bethel Boy Scouts have already volunteered their services for both of these important "behind the scenes" projects.

Auction material is still needed; and interested donors should contact Ronald Stevens at Steve's Garage.

Mollyockett Day is sponsored annually by the Bethel Health and Service Council; and it is their only yearly fund raising drive. This Council renders services all year long, many of which are unspoken but all are continued on Page Five

Mrs. Myron Bryant has purchased from Harvey Sweetser the lot on Main Street between the Naimey Block, now owned by Norman Greig and the property of Donald Brooks. This lot, with a frontage of 136 feet, is the former location of Harvey's Restaurant and a two and a half story, three apartment house, which were destroyed by fire March 24.

Mrs. Bryant plans a one-story, 63'x80' brick colonial style building which will be leased by her son, Richard, for an IGA Super Market. Mr. Bryant hopes to move to his new location early next year.

ART EXHIBIT TO BE HELD AT RUMFORD POINT CHURCH, AUG. 16 AND 17

Mrs. Henry Howe, Hanover, is serving as chairman of the committee making plans for an art exhibit to be held at the Rumford Point Congregational Church.

Artists in the area are invited to bring one or two exhibits to the Church on August 14th in the evening, between the hours of 6 and 9 p. m.

The following people are working with Mrs. Howe on plans for the exhibit which will be held on August 16th and 17th from 2 to 7 p. m.: Mrs. Howard Dunn, Rumford Point; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burnham and Mr. and Mrs. Roger Ogden, all of Hanover.

AREA GIRL SCOUTING

Last year Bethel had three active Brownie Patrols with more than 40 girls participating in Girl Scouting. Next year it is hoped to add the Junior Girl Scout Program, encompassing many more girls. In order to offer Scouting to girls in our area, Bethel must belong to the Southwestern Maine Council.

This Council offers much help to local volunteer workers through training programs, field workers, and materials available; it also supports Girl Scout Camps, both day camps and full camps. The Council has notified area workers that the goal for Bethel is $500.

In order to try to meet this goal, a house-to-house canvass for donations will be made the week of August 5th.

"GIRL SCOUTING TODAY MAKES BETTER CITIZENS TOMORROW!"—keep this in mind when a volunteer calls on you, and be generous!

After a short business meeting of final plans for the annual Flower Show, the guest speaker, David A. Hyatt, Field Supervisor for a group of four students from the U. of M. sent to Andover this summer, to make a sociological survey, was introduced.

Prof. Stephen Hyatt of the University of Maine conceived the idea of a study entitled "The Effect of the Space Installation on a Small Community." He submitted his proposal to the space research committee of the University of Maine where it received approval and was forwarded, along with several other proposed studies to NASA, who each year gives grants to colleges which they feel have worthy research programs. This was U. of M.'s first grant from NASA. It was a three year grant. NASA is a government agency whose duty it is to promote science in the field of aeronautics and space. NASA has the duty of supervising aeronautical astronauts.

David A. Hyatt is one of the four students sent from the U. of M. to make this sociological survey. This is the 338th NASA survey in the U. S. and the first to be conducted by the University of Maine.

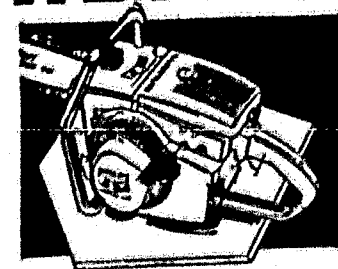

The rural community survey work is considered on a percent basis, no one's name is to be used. The surveyor's plan to go to each home and they want the opinion of individuals in regard to problems and advantages presented by having the satellite station here in Andover. The results are made public and can be obtained by all interested. Following are a list of the workers in the area: David A. Hyatt, Field Supervisor; Gordon Pennett, Peter Tidd and Stephanie Barry.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

White Mountain Logging Railroads

by C. Francis Belcher

(C. Francis Belcher, Executive Director of the Appalachian Mountain Club, has been making a study of the present subject for many years. His former association with the Boston and Maine Railroad gave him access to much pertinent information. This first appeared in the magazine of the Club, Appalachia, and appears here with their, and Mr. Belcher's permission.)

The Upper Ammonoosuc R. R.; The Upper Ammonoosuc Lumber Co. R. R.

The natural-wilderness amphitheater encircled by the Crescent, Pliny and Pilot Ranges in the New Hampshire towns of Kilkenny, Randolph, Berlin, Milan and Stark, has worn for many a long day an inscrutable cloak against the eyes of the outside world, even though for years it has been the intimate hunting and fishing preserves of those living nearby and a knowing few. Historically, by written and spoken word, this area has built up a legend of isolation and mystery. A long ago as 1820 A. N. Brackett, in the "History of Coos County," is quoted as describing Kilkenny as follows:

Kilkenny is bounded north-erly by Stratford, and easterly by Paulsburg (now Milan), Maynesborough (now Berlin), and Durand (now Randolph). . . . This town now contains very few inhabitants and they are very poor, and for aught that appears to the contrary, they must remain so, for they are actual trespassers on that part of God's world which he designed for the residence of bears, wolves, moose and other animals.

A former officer of the Appalachian Mountain Club, W. H. Peck, in an article in "Appalachia" (March 1888, p. 220) reporting on one of the earliest Club exploration trips to this area, supplied further comments to heighten the air of mystery:

Now, when it is remembered that between the Randolph road or Moose River and Jefferson on the south, and settlements on Dead River and the Upper Ammonoosuc on the north and northwest, a distance of twenty miles, search may be made in vain for any permanent human habitation, it is not strange that our knowledge of this region should be small. . . .

Later, on page 224, he adds: Here we saw one felled tree, which must have lain there many years. Before this we had seen no mark of axe since leaving the Pilot Mountain proper at the signal station; but it probably will not be long before the iron horse itself will penetrate these wilds, and carry off the spoils of these hitherto inviolate solitudes.

How true was Mr. Peck's last observation!

The Upper Ammonoosuc basic tract of 36,000 acres had three distinct logging divisions, of which only the second, as the center for a logging railroad operation, will concern us. The first division was the East Branch of this river, which is basically to the southwest corner of the present city of Berlin and the northern third of the town of Randolph. The second, and the one with which we are concerned, was the West Branch region, mostly in the town of Kilkenny with small territorial overlaps in northwest Berlin and southwest Milan. The third was the Mill Brook basin in the town of Stark.

The East Branch was logged, primarily by river drives, over a much more extensive period both before and after the time covered by this article; the accounts for the storage reservoirs formerly at Bog Dam and other waterheads along the stream. (The history of these operations would be a story in itself.) Our concern, the West Branch, lost its pristine spruce to the log trucks of the Upper Ammonoosuc Railroad in the short ten years of intensive cutting. The Mill Brook valley was lumbered by the conventional horse-and-mule method northward down Mill Brook to the town of Stark. In all three districts the original cuttings were solely for the rich-

In the early nineties the already existing Ammonoosuc Lumber Co., had sawmills cutting spruce into lumber at West Milan, Stark and Groveton. In 1893, with Black Dan Emery in charge and Fremont Wright as woods boss for the Haskell and Hobson interests of Boston, this company incorporated the Upper Ammonoosuc Railroads and started laying rails on their standard-gauge line southerly to the west bank of the river from the Grand Trunk depot in West Milan. The late Jim Keenan, for whom the upper tributary of this river was later to be named, once described their destination as the finest stands of black spruce that he had personally cruised in sixty years as a woods boss not only in this area but also in the Wild River and in recent times all over the far-flung holdings of the Brown Co. The West Branch country was about 80 percent spruce. It was for this lush cover only that Emery's forces headed. The hardwoods would be left for the later ravages of fire or the cuttings of future generations.

The lumber railroad followed the river along its west bank for about six miles to the point where the present road from Route 110 to the York Pond Fish Hatchery crosses the Upper Ammonoosuc River. From here the right of way followed today's road to York Pond, when the main line continued west about two miles along the route of the current Bannell Nott Trail of the U. S. Forest Service. There were also two shorter spurs in this area, one leading down the location of the current York Pond Trail and the other curving a bit north on the general line of the Unknown Pond Trail. Portions of the west ends of all three sections of this rail location are still quite noticeable.

Jim Keenan started his long and remarkable logging career on this Kilkenny operation. His memory of the few years he spent in this area was that "it was extensive logging on a grand scale", totally unlike any forest cuttings done in New England today. Everything except the hardwoods came down, and the best was rolled off by rail to the Ammonoosuc Mill in West Milan to be cut into lumber.

Later, both the Lumber Co. and its rail subsidiary, through the Hobson interests, became involved with the Glen Manufacturing Co. in Berlin, at that time one of the largest newspaper plants in this country and one which was itself a subsidiary in the growing realm of the International Paper Co. New pulp-processing methods had taken hold, and much of the final cuttings from this West Branch country went to the hungry jaws of these new pulp grinders in Berlin. I p on the West Branch the cutting of the big sticks had been so intense that in 1899 a large portion of the Emery and Keenan crews was transferred to Colonel Haskell's latest operation in the Wild River country, in Bean's Purchase. Much of the rolling stock and rail equipment was subsequently transferred to Wild River, although occasional steam engines continued to operate off and on up the valley from West Milan until 1903. It was in this year that the disastrous wilderness fires put an end to all lumbering on most of this once verdant basin for many years to come, just as they did in many other parts of the White Mountains in this same 1903.

Unfortunately, authentic descriptions of the fiery days from May 13 to June 8, 1903, don't exist. For New Hampshire and particularly its mountain country this one month caused more permanent timber loss and damage than any other similar period in its known history. Newspapers of the day did however carry stories that outlined briefly the searing drama which was occurring around Berlin and all over northern New Hampshire in those tense days.

Three fires visible from Randolph in the Ammonoosuc Valley. Mills in Groveton are closed and all the men are on the fire line. Whitefield is surrounded by fire. Berlin is encircled by fire with one starting in Stark near Mill Brook and going south and east. Berlin is surrounded by fire to within one-half mile. Pilot Range is invisible (from Lancaster) because of smoke. One fire is on Pilot Range threatening Berlin, one at Cape Horn and another at Devils Slide. Another on Starr King Mountain is threatening Wamsbeek.

The Kilkenny fires of 1903 ultimately covered a total of 25,110 acres in what was then a badly cut-over Upper Ammonoosuc basin. This was almost 70 percent of the entire area! The owners were fortunate in that most of their valuable stands of spruce had been removed. These fires ended for a long time all logging in the area except at the upper (Randolph) end of the East Branch. A T. R.

20 SECONDS with the NAZARENE

Christ expected His followers to "Love your enemies."

During the war a Polish woman saw the Quakers feeding the starving of both armies. "You're feeding everybody . . . I knew there ought to be people like that in the world, but I didn't know there actually were."

dents who paint for pleasure as Bethel does. Almost all of the old exhibitors have new pictures this year and newcomers are welcomed; Hamilton Bailey, superintendent of schools; Donald Hess, the new Methodist minister; Betty Muraz, wife of the owner of the Mapgood place on the Songo Road.

Betty Tebbets and Ruth Pierce are arranging the flowers, using containers brought from Japan. Miss Annie Cotton is loaning some fashion illustrations from the 1850s and 1860s. Philip Isaacson of Lewiston is loaning for the day a bronze sculpture of three trumpeters, done by Roger Prince, a native of Turner. Mr. Prince had a Fulbright grant to study in Florence, Italy. He has exhibited at the Whitney Museum Annual, one of the most important American art events; currently he lives in Westport, Conn., and is the Dean of the Silvermine College of Art.

Some of the painters have taken lessons, some have not. So rather than prizes, the public votes for the picture that it likes best. Complete list of exhibitors to date: Hamilton Bailey, Donald Hess, Sarah Webster, Claus Weiss, Geneva Vail, Shirley Keenan, Herschel

WEEKEND ACCIDENTS

A Gorham, N. H., woman was uninjured when the car she was driving left the road at 7 p. m. Sunday, hit a soft shoulder and went through guard rails. Mrs. Emma E. West of Gorham was driving a 1959 sedan when the accident occurred. A passenger in the car, Thomas Thorpe, was also uninjured. State Trooper William Bickford of Bethel investigated the accident. Damage was estimated at $120.

An accident at 12:30 a. m. Sunday, on Grover Hill, resulted in cuts and bruises for the driver, Alven Varrette, 17, Errol, N. H., and his three passengers. The 1957 sedan owned by Albert Varrette, was a total loss. The crash occurred when the car failed to negotiate a curve, rolled over and hit two trees. Troopers Hutchins, South Paris; Jardine, Hanover; and Bickford, Bethel, investigated.

A 1963 sedan owned by Charles W. Bean, Beacon Falls, Conn., and operated by Ruth Bean of Bethel, received about $125 damage when struck in the trunk cover by a car driven by Roger Young of Gorham, N. H., at 6:10 p. m. Saturday. The 1961 sedan was owned by Frances Yonne, Gorham. Damage to it was estimated at $250. Young reportedly was getting back into a line of cars after passing when the accident occurred. Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Kendall, Bethel, and State Trooper Bickford were the investigating officers.

Forest Service survey report in 1918 stated: "This fire killed everything standing and most of this has subsequently blown down."

Now, some sixty years later, the amphitheatre of the Upper Ammonoosuc still wears a cloak of mystery, despite the roads to Bog Dam and Camp 18 and to the extensive York Pond fish hatcheries of the U. S. Department of the Interior in the center of the valley. A recent A. M. C. White Mountain Guide states: "The district lying immediately north of the Crescent Range and east of the Pliny and Pilot Ranges constitutes a small-scale wilderness area of much attraction." THE WORLD'S MOST WIDELY USED DEVOTIONAL GUIDE

Thursday, August 1
Read Job 42:1-10:
John 17:9-21

The Lord restored the fortunes of Job, when he prayed for his friends. (Job 42:10. RSV.)

At the close of Job's great trial, "The Lord turned the captivity of Job when he prayed for his friends."

Sometimes all we can do for those we love is to pray for them. They may be far distant—perhaps on the other side of the globe. They may be involved in trials and exposed to temptations of which we know nothing. Even when we know their needs, we may be unable to render any help.

In any case, praying is the best we can do, for God is always near our loved ones. He knows their needs and He knows their hearts. He knows what is best for them because

He is infinitely wise. Not only can God do for them what we request; He can do "exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think."

He who in the love of God prays for his friends will try to show God's lovingkindness.

PRAYER: Dear Heavenly Father, let Thine eye be upon all whom we love. Each has his own special needs; and Thou, O God, knowest them all; and Thou alone canst supply them. Hear our prayer in their behalf. Above all, give to each one the guidance of the Holy Spirit, and draw all to Thee in Christ Jesus, in whose name we offer our prayer. Amen.

Thought For The Day
By praying and giving thanks for other, we unite with God in caring for them.

"White Mountain Echoes", sounds this note of isolation for Kilkenny: "Kilkenny is now a place of untrodden solitude and echoing silences. Man could not conquer its forests; no man has tilled its soil, cleared its land or built his home upon the banks of any of its streams. . . . May it never be desecrated again."

How fitting that 3000 feet above sea-level, at the very heart of the area stripped by the Upper Ammonoosuc Lumber Co. and its railroad, there lies a lovely mountain tern called "Unknown Pond". Despite the ravages of man a new inscrutable cloak is growing in Kilkenny.

warranted. Each of us knows of friends or relatives who, at some time or other, have been helped by the Council. Now is the time to give your support!

The Art Exhibit promises to be another successful event. This fourth annual art show will be held from 12:00 noon to 5:00 p. m. at the Chapman Barn at the head of Main Street. All participants are reminded that pictures must be turned in by August 2. Contributors to the suggestion box were appreciated last year, and will again be gratefully accepted.

Field Day events are open to all children from age six to teenage. Among the activities planned will be an egg toss with a dollar prize to the winner. Taller children in the greased pole event will have an opportunity to win a five dollar bill to be found high on the pole, and a dollar bill will be located on the smaller pole for the shorter small fry. There will also be potato relay races, three-legged races, and others.

Other highlights of the day which the children and adults alike will look forward to will include the unique pet show involving pets of all sizes and descriptions. For a small registration fee of ten cents, any pet may parade with its proud owner and try for a prize. First and second prizes will be awarded for the best dog, best cat, best other pet, most unusual pet, and best trick. Register at the Kiddie Corner, by 2:45 p. m.

A well-stocked pool of 125 fish on the Common will be the scene of the Fishing Derby. Entrants will be grouped by ages and a small registration fee of ten cents is required also before the fishing enthusiasts try their luck.

Pony rides, to be held throughout the day, will be a constant source of enjoyment for all the small fry.

Booths on the Common will include the following: Bethel Health and Service Council, milk and fruit; West Bethel Grange, home baked food; MYF, sandwiches; Round Mountain Grange, Albany, home baked food; Alder River Grange, hot dogs; WSCS, candy; Bethel Evening Extension, doughnuts and coffee; Bethel Players, soft drinks; Bethel Masons, ball and cup game; Chamber of Commerce, raffle; Ken Brooks, pop corn (machine loaned by Norma Jodrey); Mount Abram Fish and Game, animals; American Legion Auxiliary, fancy work; Spoon and Hoe 4-H Club, ice cream; Papoose Reservation, Kiddie Corner; and Mary Selling, paper back books.

Bethel Jaycees will sponsor the Teen Council Dance and Miss Oxford County. The game party is sponsored by the American Legion. Home baked bean supper is under the sponsorship of the Congregational Women's Fellowship.

Have you donated your time and efforts towards making this another successful Mollyckett Day? If not, you still have time to do so. Feel free to volunteer your services. You won't be turned down.

For weeks, preparations have been underway in all directions with citizens working side by side to make this Mollyckett Day Bazaar one big round of fun for everyone. You are not too young, nor too old, to enjoy this festive event. There is something of interest for all ages. Don't miss it.
